

An A1 Systems Certified Professional...

is trained and tested to inspect, collect, evaluate and calculate all the necessary data to achieve maximum performance from your entire roof system. It's not just a roof, it's the umbrella over your home, business, and possessions.

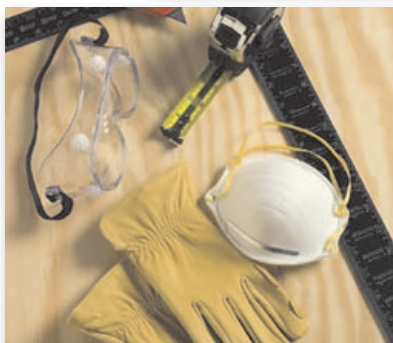

Each building is unique in design and construction. To achieve the longest life and the most efficiency from your roof, each roofing solution should be designed with products appropriate for that unique roof system. It's essential that you have a durable roof covering as well as balanced ventilation and adequate insulation. Only a trained and experienced roofing inspector or estimator of roofing systems has the necessary knowledge of newly developing products and methods to prescribe the best solution for your home.

This is what A1 Certification means to you. To achieve certification each roofing professional is required to complete over 80 hours of classroom and field training followed by an extensive test. Training and testing equips these professionals with the knowledge to calculate all the necessary data to design a roof system that can provide maximum performance and ultimate peace of mind.

Creating Roofing Professionals Skilled in Property Assessment and the Art of Roof System Design.

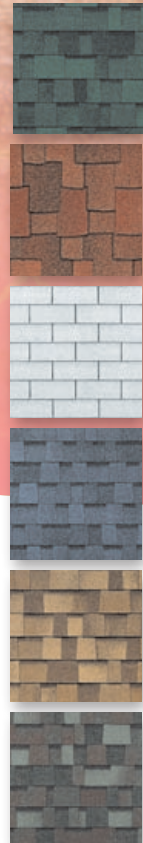

Insulation becomes more important to home and business owners with each passing season. Whether to keep out the cold, or keep the cool in its place, maximizing R-values can pay for itself many times over the lifetime of a building. A1 Certified estimators know of and offer a dizzying array of products to button up your building in every location, bringing you the greatest value and efficiency.

Ventilation is crucial to the life and effectiveness of every roofing system. Vapors and condensation can cripple R-values and encourage hidden decay in the building structure. Lon Smith's A1 Certified personnel will create a system that performs where you see it, and where you can't.

Weatherguard Shingle products need to be tough. Lon Smith has hundreds of styles, colors and materials of the highest standard for your selection, all backed by the best warranties in the business.

Please don't take our word for it.

The quality of our products, construction and service generally speak for themselves, but so do our customers.

After a couple of years of roof replacements, I have just had my third roof replaced by your company. From your first sales contact to me, through the materials delivery, roof removal, roof replacement and final roof inspection, you have been a pleasure for me to do business with. Even though we had one day of rain, you have met all of my highest expectations of how the project should have been accomplished

If I ever have a roof problem in the future, you will receive a call from me. I want to thank you for your professional sales and service efforts.
